We were able to expand our winery to a vineyard area of 4 hectares. Today, more than ever, it is important for us to manage the vineyard and the cellar in an environmentally conscious way. Outside, this means intensive care and close observation of the vines. Inside, gentle pressing is added to this. ## Thürer Weine, Maienfeld

In autumn 2010 I founded my own company "Thürer Weine". Three winegrowers from Maienfeld sell me Pinot Noir and Cabernet Sauvignon grapes, which are produced exactly according to my wishes. Working independently and with the experience I have gained over the years, I process these grapes into fine wines.

The passion for wine and for the original product, the grapes, is also inherent in my grape suppliers. They have been cultivating their vines for years according to the strict rules of integrated production (IP). The professional experience of my partners, my know-how and a gentle pressing based on modern technology and on old tradition have produced wines that fear no comparison. Passion for the profession and respect for nature are important prerequisites for producing wine creations with great passion.

This is one of the reasons why the unicorn, the heraldic animal of the Thürer family, can be found on the label of my wines. After all, the unicorn is considered the noblest of all mythical animals and stands as a symbol of goodness.

As early as 950, the prior of the Pfäfers monastery laid the foundation stone for today's palace complex with its vineyard. The mighty Torkelbaum from 1656 is closely connected with the history of the von Gugelberg family at Schloss Salenegg. Its installation in the Torkel shows that the lords of the castle did not have to spend too much effort to operate exemplary and contemporary viticulture.

With changing owners also changed the use from Spelunke to a sanctuary over orphanage to farmer enterprise. In 1995 it was rebuilt by Irene Grünfelder as a single-grape vineyard. The former primary school teacher manages the three hectares of her vineyard mainly by herself. It strives to wrinkle wines that offer their own idea of a perfect drinking pleasure. Since the absolute perfection cannot be achieved according to their own statement, their wines are simply "a little better" every year. ## Winery Sprecher von Bernegg, Jan Luzi, Jenins

The marketing expert Jan Luzi gave his career a new direction in 2006 - he took over the winery of his aunt Dorothea von Sprecher in Jenins. Sprecher's family used to process the grapes of their vineyards from other vintners. Until 1984, Dorothea von Sprecher was self-taught and, above all, the first winegrower of the Bündner Herrschaft to start making her own wines. 22 years later, she can hand over her nephew Jan a small but prestigious winery. His lack of oenological skills makes Jan Luzi suitable for an internship year at the estate of Andrea Davaz and, of course, his aunt. His goal today is to follow his aunt's philosophy: he does not want to confuse modern, uniformed wines, but honest and classic wines.

"Wine is with us in the family. Even Georg's great-grandfather, Bartholomäus Fromm, produced wine from our vines and his grandfather, also Georg Fromm, already received a gold medal for his red wine Schöpfi-Wingert at the Swiss Exhibition for the Catering Industry in Zurich.

Two generations later became the next Georg winegrowers and wine lovers. At the age of 16, he began to make his first wine, and two years later he took over the estate, which was cultivated by his mother after the early death of his father. In the meantime, much has changed in wine production. Environmentally responsible management of the vineyards and holistic vine cultivation was not yet the rule. But the country on our 4.5 ha large family business is still largely cultivated with the same noble plant, the Pinot Noir vine. " We offer also a variety of different gins.

Winery Thomas Studach, Malans

Neighboring the Gantenbein family from Fläsch (Malans is just two villages away on the same south-facing slope), this exceptional artist produces fantastic wines on his tiny 3-hectare vineyard. The success story began in 1988 when he took over the vines in Malans from his grandfather and father. For lack of money, the winemaker and oenologist, who was trained at Swiss viticultural schools, worked in parallel for other wineries; he had to work his own vineyards after hours. Since 1998, he has been producing only his own wines full-time. And he does so according to strict quality-related criteria and extremely close to nature. Like his patron, friend, advisor and role model Daniel Gantenbein, only Chardonnay and Pinot Noir, which have since been among the best in the dominion.
